

I am opposed to increasing the number of stations any one owner can hold. The flow of information in democracy requires that a broad spectrum of viewpoints be available. The concentration of media has diminished our national debate, and gives tremendous power to very few corporations who as we have seen do not hesitate to use their influence to determine content.